INSTRUCTIONS

How to use this book:

Every effort has been made to produce a "user friendly" reference to all family members. However, it became necessary to develop a system of individual identification numbers (ID#). This system provides for the following:

- (1) The first 2 digits indicate generation born in this country;
- (2) This is followed by a letter. H will always indicate a person born with the surname Holliman (however for other surnames this may require more than one letter);
- (3) The last 2 or 3 numerical digits will indicate number assigned to an individual within his or her generation. Example: my father's serial number is 09H11. This simply means he is in the ninth generation and he was the eleventh person assigned a number in that generation.

It is important to note that serial numbers in a generation are assigned on the order of my discovery of their place in the Holliman lineage. This is a simple, expandable system.

USE ALPHABETICAL INDEX to locate page number of any listed Holliman.

IMPORTANT: My system of generation numbering is off by exactly one generation. An example is Jesse Holleman numbered 03H02 is the same as Jesse Holleman numbered 4B1 in George A. Holleman's book. They are the same person (despite a discrepancy in date of death). Just keep in mind that my generation numbers are one less than those published in George Holleman's book. My reason, the Christopher Hollyman that came to this country was not born here therefore his generation is "00" and his serial number is 00H01. My numbering system counts the actual generations born in this country.

FOREWORD

When my work on this project started some years ago it was expected it would reach a conclusion with a year, or two. After all, the Holliman name is not exactly a common name like Smith or Jones. So I really did not expect to find that many relatives.

While I had always been interested in the origin of the Holliman family, my interest was stimulated by the research of Cecil Rhodes Holliman (09H12) and his correspondence on this subject to my father, Robert S. Holliman (09H11). Some years after Cecil passed on, I made contact with Charles Baker Holliman (09H14) to obtain copies of Cecil's research notes. At this point my interest in the family origin had become an obsession.

It is without question that my ignorance of the methodology involved in tracing the family lineage has resulted in much wasted effort and time. After all I know nothing of the investigative techniques used in genealogical work. I spent endless hours in libraries accumulating notes on every Holliman with any historical mention no matter how insignificant. I filled up note cards with details about each and occasionally found a connection. Two major problems surfaced, one being the various surname spelling deviations and the other being the repetition of the use of first names, such as James, John, Charles, Cornelius, and many, many others. While I learned to deal with the different surname spellings and still maintain continuity with the main family line, the repeated use of certain first names began to cause great confusion.

From collateral studies of other genealogies, particularly the Geer family (my grandmother's family), I began to learn more about the methodology of organizing all the relatives. A serial number system that identifies the generation of each Holliman is a must. In fact, the tools for this work were already at hand: MS-DOS computer systems. Using various word processing programs I began to create computer files from my note cards. The present manuscript has been generated from these files.

Although much time has been expended in searching records, the most valuable resources were within the family. In addition to Cecil's research notes, I received a considerable amount of information from John Hall Holliman (08H08) of Pleasant Grove, Alabama. I am forever grateful for the hospitality he and his wife extended to me during my short visit in their home. At his advanced age he possessed the ability to recall the earlier days in Fayette County and some stories about our predecessors. John Hall Holliman had maintained connections with some of our Arkansas and Texas relatives that provided valuable information about the Warren Holliman (05H02) line. He also had in his possession a collection of Civil War letters from his father, James Franklin Holliman (07H03), some of which mention my great-grandfather, John Thomas Holliman (07H05). (Note James Franklin and John Thomas Holliman were brothers.) I have copies of these letters that were found in Cecil's notes and have transcribed them to computer files. They will be reproduced in a separate volume.

Lacking the discipline of a skilled researcher and possessing a large amount of curiosity, I began to branch out in all directions to pursue any connection to other Holliman lines. In doing so I continued to put off the printing of this 1st edition of our Holliman story. It goes without saying I am not yet satisfied with the present edition. As there are obviously many errors that have gone unnoticed. Various misinformation may have found its way into this first printing. And it has occurred to me that such a massive effort to produce a complete story of our origin and our family connections is impossible, I am delaying no further in setting to print the 1st Edition of our Holliman story.

It should be noted that the major researcher into the Holliman story is George A. Holleman. His book, "The Hollyman Family", published in 1953 provided much insight into the origin of our family. It was his belief that all American Hollymans, Hollimans, Hollemans, Hollimons, Hollomons, et. al. spellings, were linked to the Christopher Hollyman that came to Isle of Wight Co., Virginia on May 22, 1650. In publishing "The Hollyman Family" he intentionally left it without copyright in order to encourage the continuation of his efforts in recording the lineage of the Hollimans. At the time he published his book he listed our lineage as not yet connected to the main family line. The following pages of our Holliman story provides the probable connection to the Christopher Hollyman line that is supported by considerable evidence. In all probability, no better evidence will be forthcoming. It is at this point we must believe that no greater knowledge will be available to use until we meet our Master and Creator.

As comments, corrections, and additions are welcome, I have included a form to be used in reporting this information. I will endeavor to keep up with this new information, make corrections, and add new family members as they are discovered. Our story, "The History of the Holliman Family in America", is dependent on input from family members to make it a "living story" for all our descendants. There is a need for more up-to-date information on the later generations. It is with this in mind, I eagerly solicit correspondents with new information.
