Article by John Hall Holliman

Birmingham 8, Alabama.

Date written: February 12, 1964.

"I propose to tell this story as it was told to me by my half-sister, Virginia Ann Holliman, (1867-1934). So far as I know the story is basically true.

It was back in 1863 when Ben Northam returned from serving with the Confederate Army, on a furlough, to visit his wife, Mary Jane and their four children, in Fayette County, Alabama. Nancy was carrying an unborn child. Maybe this contributed to the possibility that he may have overstayed his furlough, and gave rise to the alternative story that he was killed by the "Home Guard."

Anyway, Dr. Joshua Holliman visited his good friend Ben Northam, and when he started to leave, Ben accompanied him down the road as Holliman led his saddle horse and walked along, engaged in a lively conversation. Nancy Jane watched them disappear around the bend in the road, little realizing that it was the last time she would see her husband alive.

Sometime later, Ben's body was found in a water hold in the Langston Creek Swamp, just back of the Andrew Corbett place, in North Fayette County, with an iron wedge in his throat. Since Ben was last seen with Dr. Holliman, there was a strong suspicion that Holliman was in some way involved with his disappearance and death. The extreme brutality of the murder, and the unspoken feelings which the circumstances generated, caused Dr. Holliman to leave Fayette County, and to take up his residence elsewhere, and to change the spelling of his name a bit. Some say he moved to Mississippi, then to the Indian Territory, and finally back to Arkansas, where he reared a large and splendid family.

For the part of the story which was finished in Alabama, we shall turn to J.F. Holliman, a cousin to the Doctor, who was away to the war during the action of the story. When he returned from the war, he married and settled on a 320 acre tract separated from the Northam family by about a half mile, though the houses were a mile apart. J. F. Holliman reared two sets of children on this farm. I am the youngest of the second set, he being 67 years of age, when I was born.

The Northam farm was later operated by Ben Jr., who was an unborn child at the time of his father's death. During the long period from 1866 to about 1912, there was little communication between the two families, as there was an unspoken feeling of strain, though no one was blamed for it. About 1912, a year after my Father's death, a letter was reported to have been received by some of the Northam kin communicating a death-bed confession of the murder of their Father, by a man named Perkins, who was dying of typhoid fever in Texas.

Soon thereafter, when my brothers or I met a Northam boy, the hand of friendship was extended, and many a time since I personally engaged in fierce and friendly water battles in the Old Swimming Hole with Felix, or Bill Northam. They were both older than I, but were always kind enough not to press me too hard.

When my older Brother, C. C. Holliman was first licensed as a Baptist Minister, he and Ben Jr., established a little church, later "Bethabra" near the Northam Farm. They continued very close friends until Ben's death in 1945, at the age of 81 years. Thus, a relationship which could have grown into something unwholesome became something warm and friendly and lasting between the two families and their descendants.

Last Sunday, I visited Bill (W.T.) Northam, the youngest son of Ben Jr., who now lives at the old homestead, and talked with him for an hour. He verified the death of his grandfather at the hands of the "Home Guard", in the year 1863, and that when the body was found, there was an iron wedge in his throat. I also picked up some slight variations on the story from other people with whom I checked.

I might add that Nancy Jane Northam lived until the Summer of 1932, and that I personally sat up all night at her wake. She died at the age of 97 years.

Note:

Dr. Joshua Holliman (06H03) - changed the spelling of his name to Holiman and is believed to have moved to Arkansas in 1867. It is also indicated that he resided in Carrol County, Mississippi for some time.
