(p.58-A)

The following family lineage extends from Samuel Holloman, # 4D5. As stated earlier in this book he is the son of Samuel Holloman, # 3D4, that was born CA 1680 in Edgecombe County, N.C. Furthermore, the elder Samuel Holloman (3D4) was the son of Richard Hollyman (2D1) that died in 1711 in Surry County, Virginia. Richard (2D1) was son of Christopher Hollyman that died in 1691 at Isle of Wight County, Virginia.

It is the belief of this researcher that the lineage of Samuel Holloman, # 3D4, and his son Samuel Holloman, # 4D5, has a high probability of being connected to Cornelius Holliman that was born CA 1792. The reasons are based on logistics and spelling variations. First there is agreement in time and place of Cornelius Holliman and Samuel Holloman (both 3D4 and 4D5). They seem to be found in the same counties in North Carolina and South Carolina. Also in this lineage of Hollymans we find the greatest variation in spelling of the surname, one variation that occurs is the spelling of "Holliman".

This researcher has found evidence of the burial of a Samuel C. Holliman in the old Gibson Cemetery (which is locally referred to as the "Tory Cemetery") located on the north side of state highway # 522 between Heath Springs and Stoneboro, about 1 mile beyond the crossroads at the former J. Truesdale Stover home.

Cemetery Inscription is as follows:

SAMUEL C. HOLLIMAN - a Tory - born April 7, 1754 departed this life 12thA.D. 1832 age 78.

The inscription, among others, was recorded by Minor C. Mackey and Coke H. Bennett. The cemetery is located across from Bennett's childhood home. A notation was made that copies were made February 28, 1935, and spelling and other details of inscriptions were exactly as found on tombstones. Unfortunately the tombstones have been vandalized and lost. However, the record is preserved in the following source material : "Inscriptions from Old Cemeteries, Lancaster Co., South Carolina" - published by the Lancaster County Historical Commission (S.C.) - 1974. This book can be found in the Birmingham Library (LC# 929.5 INS). See page 30.

Using the information found in the "The Hollyman Family" we find some startling similarities to # 4D4 Samuel Holloman.

George Holleman's research shows # 4D4 Samuel Holloman, born CA 1750 - CA 1828. Taking these approximate dates at face value we find Samuel Holloman died at age 78.

(p.58-B)

There is a similarity of dates between # 4D5 Samuel Holloman approximate date of birth and the exact date of birth. Compare CA 1750 to April 7, 1754. This along with the same age at death, age 78, would lead us to believe that # 4D5 Samuel Holloman in "The Hollyman Family" book and the Samuel Holliman that is buried in Lancaster County (S.C.) Gibson (or Tory) Cemetery is one and the same person.

Also according to George Holleman's book we find that (# 4D5) Samuel Holloman had a son (# 5D5) James Holloman and various sources indicate that he also spelled his name in his later years as Holliman. Samuel's brother (# 4D7) David Holloman appears to spell his name on occasion as Holliman and his grandson, 6D37 Thomas Jefferson Holliman had adopted the spelling of Holliman from birth, and probably because his father used that spelling, at least at times. We will probably never know why the change of spelling. However, it is noted that the spelling in the old country, England, is either Hollyman or Holliman. It appears that the switch to the Holliman spelling, at least for # 4D5 Samuel Holloman, began at the end of the Revolutionary War. Also there appears to be some relocation of Hollomans or Hollimans to an area along the border of North Carolina and South Carolina commencing about the time the Revolutionar War ended. Given the fact that Samuel Holliman was buried in a Tory Cemetery we may be lead to believe that there were divisions in the family over the Revolutionary War. Furthermore, various history books indicate a migration of Loyalist, Tories, and those that proclaimed neutrality to South Carolina and Georgia.
