Dear Professor Kosztarab:

Thank you for your letter of September 24 regarding the membership on the University Wine Award Committee of the Chairman of the College of Arts and Sciences Wine Award Committee. The Chairman of that Committee for this year will be Professor Antonie Distler of the Department of Performing Arts and Communications. It has been traditional in this College for the immediate past three recipients of the award to serve as the members of the College committee. The other two members of the committee for the current academic year are Professors James Wolfe of the Department of Chemistry and Professor Rhodes Holliman of the Department of Biology.

Sincerely yours,

William C. Havard

Dear Buck:

It is indeed a pleasure to convey to you some of the comments which were contained within the nominations for your Wine Award. What I related in the remarks made at the Arts and Sciences graduation ceremony were primarily drawn from such comments. After describing briefly the nature and source of these awards, I quoted verbatim the comments contained within the nominations. These comments follow:

"By combining scientific knowledge with a rare talent for teaching, Dr. Holliman generates his own enthusiasm for parasitology in his students."

"His interest in his students extends far beyond the classroom situation, and his efforts in sincerely helping students are not to be equaled."

"He is extremely stimulating, encouraging student ideas."

I shall again add my sincere congratulations. It is doubly a pleasure to be able to congratulate a friend and colleague.

Sincerely,

Dear Professor Kosztarab:

The W. E. Wine Award Committee of the College of Arts and Sciences met on May 15, and, after careful consideration of the more than 50 professors for whom forms were submitted, the Committee takes pleasure in unanimously nominating Dr. Rhodes B. Holliman, Associate Professor of Zoology, for one of the 1971 W. E. Wine Awards.

Our selection of Dr. Holliman was based on several criteria:

- (a) he was nominated by some 30 individuals;
- (b) these nominators represented opinion from 5 colleges within the University;
- (c) the nominators also were drawn from all levels of student rank, as well as faculty; and
- (d) the nominee has received similar support in previous years for which there are records.

Perhaps, more important than the above statistical criteria are the comments contained within the nominations for Dr. Holliman:

"By combining scientific knowledge with a rare talent for teaching, Dr. Holliman generates his own enthusiasm for parasitology in his students."

"His interest in his students extends far beyond the classroom situation, and his efforts in sincerely helping students are not to be equaled."

"He is extremely stimulating, encouraging student ideas."

"Watching him teach a class is like watching a fine craftsman at work."

"His exceptional scholarship and command of subject matter."

In addition to his classroom expertise, his concern for students, and his scholarly accomplishments, Dr. Holliman was also cited by several students for his teaching of informal classes in birth control throughout the University dormitories.

In short, Dr. Holliman is both widely and sincerely respected and admired throughout the University as a teacher; in view of such a consensus, the Arts and Sciences Committee feels that Dr. Holliman truly represents the measure of excellence for which the W. E. Wine Award is presented.

Sincerely yours,

Paul Antonie Distler

V.P.I. & S.U. Alumni Association W. E. Wine Faculty Achievement Award for Excellence in Teaching - 1971

It is the unanimous feeling of the V.P.I. Alumni Association Wine Award Committee that spontaneous expressions of enthusiasm on the part of students, staff, and alumni are more meaningful and more in keeping with the purposes of the Wine Awards than are the products of a campaign or organized drive.

I nominate the following teacher for Wine Award:

Name of teacher: Dr. Hollmann

Of the department of Biology; In the college of Arts & Sciences

Reasons for recommendation: Dr. Hollmann is an outstanding teacher and enthusiastic about his teaching. He has the kind of enthusiasm about his work that carries his students with him. He is also genuinely interested in his students and willing to help with any problems that they may be concerned with.

Of the department of Biology; In the college of ARTS + SCIENCES

Reasons for recommendation: Dr. Holliman has shown an above average interest in all Tech students. I have never been in one of his classes, but I heard him speak to a group of girls in our dorm (M. Campbell) on the subject of birth control methods. He gives willingly of his time to speak with various student groups. ^{He is} ~~not~~ not pushy with his own ideas, but succeeds in presenting an objective viewpoint. Because of this concern he is showing towards the VPI community, I feel that Dr. R.B. Holliman would be a deserving recipient of one of the 1971 Wine Awards.

I nominate the following teacher for a Wine Award:

Name of teacher: Dr. Holliman

Of the department of Biology (Zoology)

Reasons for Recommendation: Dr. Holliman's lectures are great. The material is presented clearly and completely. Dr. Holliman keeps his lectures fresh & spicy thru really funny^{related} incidents, analogies, & practical applications of the material. He also expresses a personal & genuine interest & concern in the students. He has a wide thorough up-to-date knowledge of the best topics.

His course (Bio 122) is my hardest course, but most worthwhile & enjoyable.

Reasons for Recommendation: I would like to recommend him because he is such a fantastic teacher. He is able to present material to the class in such a way that they understand what he is explaining.

What's even more important is that he makes learning

his subject enjoyable and I can even say I look forward to his class. Well this way even when I'm not even getting

Dear Rhodes:

The purpose of this letter is to offer my sincere congratulations for your accomplishment in winning the Wine Award for distinguished teaching.

This award is particularly significant since it recognizes good teaching. In my view, after all, that is what education is all about.

This award brings high credit to you, your department, and your college.

Once again, congratulations.

Sincerely yours,

H. H. Mitchell

Dear Buck:

Thank you for the clippings announcing the recognition and awards you have received recently. It is always a pleasure to hear from you and to learn of the progress you are making. I know Bob Short and I both share in the feeling of satisfaction over one of our graduate students who has done superlatively well.

It doesn't seem possible that James is ready to go to the University. Time has passed so rapidly.

Please give my regards to Mary.

Sincerely,

W. Henry Leigh

Dear Professor Kosztarab:

Thank you for your letter of September 24 regarding the membership on the University Wine Award Committee of the Chairman of the College of Arts and Sciences Wine Award Committee. The Chairman of that Committee for this year will be Professor Antonie Distler of the Department of Performing Arts and Communications. It has been traditional in this College for the immediate past three recipients of the award to serve as the members of the College committee. The other two members of the committee for the current academic year are Professors James Wolfe of the Department of Chemistry and Professor Rhodes Holliman of the Department of Biology.

Sincerely yours,

Dear Buck:

It is indeed a pleasure to convey to you some of the comments which were contained within the nominations for your Wine Award. What I related in the remarks made at the Arts and Sciences graduation ceremony were primarily drawn from such comments. After describing briefly the nature and source of these awards, I quoted verbatim the comments contained within the nominations. These comments follow:

"By combining scientific knowledge with a rare talent for teaching, Dr. Holliman generates his own enthusiasm for parasitology in his students."

"His interest in his students extends far beyond the classroom situation, and his efforts in sincerely helping students are not to be equaled."

"He is extremely stimulating, encouraging student ideas."

I shall again add my sincere congratulations. It is doubly a pleasure to be able to congratulate a friend and colleague.

Sincerely,
